Other safaris, activities you could do after the cycling tour:

1. Murchison Falls National Park: located about 1 day drive from Bwindi.

Varied habitats, rolling grasslands, bushy hills, papyrus swamps, tropical forest and open water describes Uganda biggest conservation area.

The park is a paradise for birders with its more than 430 registered species.

The small boat cruise on the Nile drives along the shores where many water birds, grazing buffalos, elephant, crocodiles and hippos can be observed.

The boat reaches close to the bottom of the 40 metre Murchison Falls where the river cascades through a less than 7 metre wide breach. A walk can be taken from where the boat stops to the top of the waterfalls. The Nile divides the park into two parts and the northern part is better for watching wildlife.

Budongo Forest in the southern part is an excellent place for chimpanzee tracking.

Activities: game drive, chimpanzee tracking, boat cruise on the Nile, birding

2. Rafting or kayaking on the Nile in Jinja-full day trip (the start of the rafting is located about 1,5 h from Kampala)

3. Rwenzori Mountain Climbing

Rwenzori lies along the border of Uganda and DRC. Although it is not the highest but certainly the largest and most important mountain range in Africa. The “cousins” Mt.Kili and Mt. Kenya are both higher but they are single volcanic peaks. Rwenzori, whose highest point is 5109 m is a massif composed of six separated mountains. The peaks are covered by permanent snow and glaciers.

Rwenzoris were first described by Ptolomy (from the time of the ancient Greeks) as the “Mountain of the Moon” because they were believed to be the source of the Nile. The peaks Alexandria (5091) and Margherita (5109) were climbed for the first time 1906.

The bizarre Afro-alpine plants, giant lobelias and scenecios, orchids and ferns, boggy terrains , stunning waterfalls, spectacular glaciers, moss and lichens which cover the ground and fallen trees give the feeling of being in a wonderland.

Rwenzori is climbed any time throughout the year although most trekkers prefer to do it in dry seasons of June to early September and December to early March.

Margherita climb: 7-8-9 days, Margherita peak(5109m)

Central Circuit Trail: 6 to7 days up to Kitandara Hut (4027m)

To see the most spectacular views we recommend to do the Central Circuit Trail. The weather can be rainy and misty which makes to climbing even more challenging. The climbing of the highest peaks requires one to have experience in mountain climbing.
